Rising Scores seeks certified teachers with classroom experience for part-time work with one-on-one tutoring.

Rising Scores tutors meet in students' homes for 1-2 hours on weekday evenings or weekends. Tutor responsibilities vary from helping students with remedial subjects to preparing high achievers for daunting tests. Special education teachers are especially welcome.

Rising Scores is committed to helping students who may benefit from a more personalized curriculum in reading, math and other subjects. We try to add a love of LEARNING to proven techniques. We think that the fun of learning is too often replaced by curricula that are solely test-oriented. We too believe in standards, and that tests are often the best ways to measure excellence in meeting those standards. Our approach is to achieve an improvement with a determined student, buoyed to competence by well-honed skills and a comfortable learning environment.

In the later years (grades 6 – 10) Rising Scores elaborates on and reinforces students writing skills. We believe that students could be capable of writing college-level assignments by the end of 10th grade. Many have the interest, but few are not challenged to do so.

We have extended day programs, summer school programs, and in-school programs. When it comes to helping students raise state test scores and improve their overall learning capabilities, our team of instructors and instructor-trainers is there to provide the academic enrichment and emotional encouragement students need.

Rising Scores believes strongly that children and adolescents respond to and are highly encouraged by home support. Therefore, we are also there to support and encourage students in need of additional guidance and students who may lack the academic assistance at home.
